Timely Tidbits ...

"Benny"fit Steak Roast To Raise Funds for Kidney Transplant

Employees of United Brass will be having a "Benny"fit Steak Roast for their friend and co-worker, Ben Warren, on Sunday, August 29, at the Progressive Hall in Romulus. Ben has become disabled due to kidney failure, and is currently on Harper Hospital's waiting list for a kidney transplant. Proceeds from the sale of tickets, which are $10 each, will be used to help pay for this very costly operation. (Cash donations are also more than welcome!) For information, please contact Linda Smith at United Brass (942-9224).

Summer's Last "Concert in the Park" Will Feature Folk Tunes

The Romulus Arts Council and the Romulus Historical Society invite everyone to bring their lawn chairs and blankets out to the Romulus Historic Park on Sunday, August 29, at 3 p.m. to enjoy the last of the summer's free concerts. Featured will be the music of One Flight Up, who will perform a variety of folk tunes reminiscent of Peter, Paul, and Mary.

Summer Reading Program Successful

This summer, the children who participated in the Romulus Public Library Summer Reading Program read (or listened) for 41,124 minutes during the seven weeks of the Program. That translates into 685.4 hours or 28.56 days or 4.08 weeks that they spent reading. WOW!

Local resident, Janet Coalson, AKA "Sunshine the Clown," delighted the children at the final party on August 11. (Those who could not make the party should pick up their reading certificate and goody bag at the Library before school starts.)

The Library staff and Program participants wish to thank the Romulus Chamber of Commerce and Kelsey-Hayes for free circus tickets; Romulus IGA for cookies; McDonald's of Romulus for orange drink; Kim Bolus and Mandy Pate for their volunteer hours during the programs; and the "Friends of the Romulus Library" for their help and financial support.

Education Task Force To Hold Public Hearings

The House Democratic Education Task Force has embarked on a series of public hearings to solicit input on the type of public education system that Michigan should have to meet the needs of students in the twenty-first century.

The Committee has announced that the next two hearings will be held on Thursday, September 9, in Kalamazoo (City Chambers, 1 to 5 p.m.) and on Friday, September 17, in Detroit (King High School, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.). The Detroit meeting will probably be the last to be held in the southeast Michigan area.

"Everything should be on the table when it comes to education reform," said Representative Gregory Pitoniak (D-Taylor), who is a member of the Task Force. "House Democrats are intent on putting the needs of children first. The Task Force also concluded that any proposal to educate our children and pay for that education must embrace several basic principles in order to receive support from House Democrats."

According to Pitoniak, the Task Force recognizes that the Michigan Constitution mandates that the "legislature shall maintain and support a system of free public elementary and secondary schools ..." (Article VIII, Section 2).

In addition, the Task Force supported the following principles:

Representative Gregory Pitoniak

- All children must be provided with an opportunity for a quality public educational program, regardless of where they live.
- The quality of education must be based on the needs of the children.
- Local control of the schools must be maintained.
- The high quality of education provided in some districts must be supported while upgrading the quality of others.

- A fair, equitable, and efficient mechanism for funding public education must be developed through the evaluation of all current and potential revenue sources.

Pitoniak stated, "There is no free lunch when it comes to funding education. . . . We will seek to insure that taxes are fair and supportive of elevating the quality of our public educational system."

Pitoniak said that the Task Force's hearings around Michigan are an attempt to develop a consensus from educators, parents, and business leaders on what education reform should include.

"In the past, improving public education has always primarily centered on responding to demands for increased funding for current programs," Pitoniak said. "We have rarely, if ever, asked what was needed."

The House Democratic Education Task Force was created by Speaker Curtis Hertel (D-Detroit) following Legislative approval of Senate Bill 1 (SB 1), which, now that it has been signed into law, will cut property taxes by 65% through elimination of all local school operating taxes, effective July 1994.

It has been estimated that SB 1 eliminated about $6.3 billion in local school revenue. □

St. Aloysius Festival Is an Annual Favorite

Once again, the community is invited to attend one of this city's biggest annual events: The St. Aloysius Festival. As usual, the four-day festival (Friday, September 3, from 6 p.m. to 12 a.m.; Saturday, September 4, from 4 p.m. to 12 a.m.; Sunday, September 5, from 12 p.m. to 12 a.m.; and Monday, September 6, from 1 to 9 p.m.) will be held at St. Aloysius Catholic Church (11280 Ozga).

Highlights of the Festival include . . .

Las Vegas Games

Try your luck at the Las Vegas Tent, which boasts 15 blackjack tables, a roulette wheel, and a "big six" wheel. Betting varies from a minimum of $1 to a maximum of $5, with a maximum winnings per person per day of $500; blackjack pays double! Of course, all players must be at least 18 years old.

The Las Vegas Tent will be open Friday from 7 to 11:30 p.m.; Saturday from 6 to 11:30 p.m.; Sunday from 3:30 to 11:30 p.m.; and Monday from 3:30 to 8:30 p.m.

BINGO!

St. Aloysius School will be the recipient of all proceeds from the 50/50 BINGO games, sponsored by the Gregorian Club. Cards are two for a quarter each game.

The BINGO Tent will be open on Friday from 6 p.m. to 12 a.m.; Saturday from 4 p.m. to 12 a.m.; Sunday from 12 p.m. to 12 a.m.; and Monday from 12 to 9 p.m.

Raffles

Ticket buyers can choose between the 50/50 Hourly Raffle ($1 tickets; cash prizes of half the money from each hour's sales) and the "Big Drawing" Raffle (features chances at the three lump-sum prizes of $2,000, $1,000, and $500 at a cost of $1 per ticket or $5 for six tickets). Better yet, why not buy plenty of both?

Entertainment

A variety of bands will provide free entertainment: the Klancnik Brothers (Friday, 7 to 11 p.m.); Heart & Soul (Saturday, 7 to 11 p.m.); Pan Franek, Zosia, & the Polka Towners (Sunday, 2 to 6 p.m.); Jimmy K & the Power Play (Sunday, 7 to 11 p.m.); and Ted Koltowicz/Sparks of Fire Orchestra (Monday, 3 to 9 p.m.). Come out and dance the night away!

Games/Arcade

Whether you're young, "young at heart," or in between, you'll find plenty of fun at this year's arcade, which will feature old favorites and new challenges to overcome.

Crafts/White Elephants/Frozen Yogurt

Twenty eight-foot tables will be covered with everything from Christmas gifts to baked goods at this year's display – and, this year, they'll be selling frozen yogurt, as well. Come out and get a jump on your holiday shopping!

Food . . .

Of course, there'll be plenty of delicious food! Visit the Dining Room on Sunday between 12 and 6 p.m. to enjoy homemade chicken, mashed potatoes and gravy, stuffing, vegetables, rolls, dessert, and more ($6 for adults; $3 for kids; $1.50 for tots under five) – then come back on Monday, between 1 and 6 p.m., for spaghetti, salad, rolls, and Sunday's leftovers ($4 for adults; $2 for kids; $1.50 for tots under five). Or, if you're craving more "traditional" carnival food, stop by Hamburger Villa and feast on hamburgers, hot dogs, kielbasa, pizza, chips, coffee, and pop. Dig in!

. . . and Drink

This year's Spirit Tent will serve popcorn and canned pop in addition to beer, wine, and wine coolers. You must be at least 21 years of age to purchase alcoholic beverages.

Making God Laugh

By Tom Shamanski

For some time now, I've wanted to write this column, but have been a bit wary about doing so. You see, I've found that several religions have a tenet or two that makes me smile; but poking fun at religions could, understandably, offend a whole lot of people—plus make me dash for cover whenever I hear thunder.

"Disclaimerly wisely," I go to church regularly; perhaps that, along with an attempt to be "fair" by hitting on a few of the most prominent religions as equally as possible, will enable me to pull this off. So, here goes! (Dear God, have mercy!)

As I'm Catholic — and as Father Michelle Goldberg has given me her okay on this — I'll start with Catholicism. As far as I know, Catholics pay more homage to Jesus' mother Mary than do followers of other religions. One of the mysteries, or themes, that Catholics meditate upon when praying the rosary is that of Mary's finding Jesus — who, at the time, was 12 years old — in a Jewish temple. Preceding this, Jesus, Mary, and Joseph had journeyed to Jerusalem for a Passover celebration and, after the festivities, began — along with several others — heading back home to Nazareth.

But, after a day on the road, Mary discovered that Jesus wasn't among their group. Can you imagine the thoughts that must have raced through her mind?

"Oh, no! I can't believe this! I gave birth to GOD's SON, and now I've gone and lost him! Oh, mercy, God's not going to like this; no, not one little bit." Boy, talk about the ultimate "no place to run, no place to hide" scenario.

Now, as I understand it, Fundamentalists are people who believe in the Scriptures literally—word for word. What worries me here is that following their particular belief might become somewhat painful at times. Consider "an eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth." Yikes! And, how about the Scriptural verses that say it's better to cut off a part of your body than to offend God? Ouch!

Contemplating this, it seems that there can't be a whole lot of Fundamentalists out there; otherwise, not even Hillary Clinton could map out a National health plan that could cover all of these folks.

And how about the Jewish belief that the Messiah hasn't come yet? C'mon, you guys, we Catholics know that he has come and, as everyone knows, our teachings are infallible. And, further, why are the Jews God's "chosen people"? Certainly, Jerry Seinfeld's got a terrific TV show, and Hank Greenburg was a heck of a ball-player — but how do you explain Joan Collins?

Then there's Zen Buddhism. . . . I experimented with Zen for awhile, and it was interesting—even enlightening. With Zen, the main thing is to sit-up-as-straight-as-you-can! and think of nothing—I mean, nothing at all. For me, of course, a blank mind is pretty much habitual.

But, anyway, I was used to kneeling-up-as-straight-as-you-can! Since I was having difficulty sitting properly, the Buddhist monk conducting the service beat me unmercifully — and most people think of Buddhists as kind and gentle people. . . . Ha!

Well, that's it; I've finally gotten this out of my system. Of course, I still may have offended some people, but I'm sure that I haven't made God angry. After all, when He looks down and sees the crazy, goofy, absurd things that we do, He's got to be laughing all the time, anyway. . . . Dost thou not thinketh so, too? □

Romulus Profile: Mike Prybyla

By Tom Shamanski

Mike Prybyla, a 26-year Romulus resident, has been working in the environmental health field since he graduated from Ferris State College in 1966. At that time, he went to work for the Wayne County Health Department – and he continues his employment with that County agency today.

In a recent interview, the 52-year-old Prybyla said, "At first, I was an inspector for the Public Health Sanitation Division. In that position, I inspected restaurants, mobile-home parks, swimming pools . . . in short, anything that the public would have access to and that would require a State health certificate in order to operate."

In 1975, Prybyla emerged from the University of Michigan's graduate school, having earned his master's degree in environmental health administration. Shortly thereafter, he was promoted to area supervisor and, in 1989, became the overall departmental manager of the County's Environmental Health Department, a post which he holds to this day.

When asked what prompted him into the field of environmental health, Prybyla replied, "First, I was attracted to the biological aspect of environmental health. Then, after further checking, I saw that environmental health would, before too long, become an important issue in our society. Also, on the practical side, it seemed that a lot of job openings would soon be created in the environmental field."

* * *

Throughout the years, the Detroit native has been a member of several organizations, both professional and civic. In 1981, he joined the Romulus Rotary Club, of which he is still a member.

"I started out as a regular board member," Prybyla said, "and went through the chairs (a procedure whereby a member automatically moves up from the lowest office to the top)."

Prybyla noted that, from 1987 to 1989, he was the Club's president.

After stating that he was a board member of the Romulus Little League from 1978 to 1982, Prybyla recalled his time on the City Planning Commission as an appointee of former Romulus mayor Bill Oakley.

When queried as to what was the most significant development to occur while he was on the Commission, Prybyla answered, "It was during that time that the City developed a master plan for zoning."

"This," he continued, "resulted in a major impact on the trucking industry. Before the zoning went into effect, trucking firms were merely 'spot-zoned.' In other words, several truck depots were adjacent to residential areas."

The master zoning plan, Prybyla continued, was also an instrument whereby the new trucking zone areas were given good access to, and from, the expressway.

From 1984 to 1988, Prybyla was a member of the School Board for Southgate's Aquinas High School.

"I was appointed through St. Aloysius," he explained. "As St. Aloysius was associated with Aquinas, the Church had to have one representative on the School Board, and I accepted the appointment."

Since 1966, Prybyla has been an active member of the Michigan Environmental Health Association. The Group meets two or three times each year, he said, and each gathering is a good opportunity to stay abreast of current environmental issues.

Lastly, from 1985 to 1989, Prybyla was president of the American Federation of State and County Municipal Employees union, or AFSCME.

"When I first became president," Prybyla stated, "there were many problems in the union, including financial problems. The membership was down and the workers had been without a contract for five years. Also, the Wayne County Hospital had closed the previous year, and the County had widely dispersed many of the Hospital's former employees. With all this, the Union was, more or less, 'inactive' at that time."

Prybyla then said that, after his election as AFSCME's president, membership grew, the employees and the County soon agreed on a contract, and the Union treasury went from a $6,000 deficit to a surplus of $17,000.

Although he was elected as Union president by a two-to-one margin, Prybyla said, "I don't consider my time as Union president to be political. I considered it as a job that had to be done – and, since I was a member, I took it on."

When asked to speak to future professional goals, Prybyla said, "Promotions will be available in the future, depending upon the County's financial decision with regard to filling the positions. Also, I'm eligible for retirement, but my decision on that will depend on the possibility of promotion."

If he opts for retirement, Prybyla noted, he would then either seek out another environmental health position or change careers. In his chosen field, Prybyla would aim for an administrative position – an example of which, he noted, would be a post as hospital administrator in the area of environmental health cleanup.

* * *

Recently, Prybyla filed petitions to have his name placed on this November's ballot as a candidate for Romulus City Council. Since each of the current members of the Council, when profiled by The Romulus News, was given an opportunity to list three Council achievements of which he/she was most proud, Prybyla – as a Council candidate – was asked to list three goals that he would pursue if elected in November.

"First, I think we need to improve the entrances to the City. Although things seem to be moving that way now, I would like this to move much faster. I feel that this would help with City beautification."

"Some years ago," he added, "the Downtown Development Authority made improvements in two or three blocks Downtown, but what about the rest of the City?"

In noting his second City Council goal, Prybyla stated, "I would like to work on seeing that City ordinances are better regulated and enforced. Since I have 26 years of experience in spotting violations, I feel that I'm well qualified for that job. Even now, I see several areas where ordinances are not enforced, and I feel that improvements could be made in all those areas."

More residential development within the City is Prybyla's third Council goal. We must, he said, encourage developers to come to Romulus and build new homes. The zoning is already in place for this, he concluded.

* * *

Prybyla and his wife Midge have been married for 26 years. Employed by Southwest Airlines, Midge is an administrative coordinator and works out of Detroit Metropolitan Airport. The couple have two adult children. Son Lee, 25, has been in the construction trades for two years. Twenty-three-year-old Heather works at Farmington's Transamerica Title Company, where she clears titles and performs mortgage closings. An accounting graduate of Western Michigan University, Heather ultimately wishes to become a certified public accountant.

Turning to leisure-time activities, Prybyla described himself as an "avid" golfer, and, grinning, told of his first "hole in one," which he notched on August 2.

When not working for Southwest, Midge operates her own interior design and antique shop in Ypsilanti. The shop is open two and a half days per week.

Together, the Prybylas enjoy traveling, and are attempting to visit all 48 contiguous states; currently, they have six more to go. They have also journeyed to Mexico, London, Paris, and Hawaii. When he was 16 years old, Prybyla accompanied his father, Mike, on a 30-day African safari.

"Living in tents and such, it was very primitive," he recalled, "but the scenery was beautiful. We were in Kenya, in the area near Mount Kilimanjaro."

* * *

As the interview drew to a close, the intensely focused yet very personable Prybyla was asked why he wishes to be on the Romulus City Council.

He replied, "I feel that, with the education and work experience that I've had, I have a lot to contribute to the City's operations, including the decision-making policies of the legislative branch of City government."

"Also," he added, "I feel that I have new insights on some of the City's problems – and, with my new perspective on these issues, I also hope to stimulate other Council members."

Prybyla concluded by saying that he does not plan to make politics a career. □

"Our Home"

When Your House Doesn't Sell Right Away

By Celia Chesno

Your local realtor's phone rings, bringing the call that all realtors dread: "My house has been on the market for months, and it still hasn't sold! Why is that?"

The realtor replies, "Let's be calm and take a good look at what is going on here. It has been well documented that the important things in marketing a home are exposure, price, and location. We both know that location is something that we cannot do anything about! We will, therefore, have to deal with the others."

"Exposure is that part that you need my help on," she continues. "Let's take a look at the things that I have been doing to help you sell your home: it has been advertised in a couple of 'homes' magazines and our local newspapers; you have feature sheets so that people who come through it are more likely to remember your home over the others that they saw when they were out looking; I put 'just listed' postcards out in your neighborhood so that all the neighbors would know (many times, they know someone who would like to live in their area!); my office came through 'on tour' so that they could describe your house to anyone who calls; I have offered you the opportunity to have an open house; AND we have put up our Nationally recognized sign in your front yard, letting everyone know that your home is for sale! I feel that we have covered the 'market exposure" part quite well."

"All of that is true," you say, "however, my home still isn't sold!"

"Perhaps it's time to discuss the price of your home," says your realtor. "Everyone who sells a home wants the best price possible. Sometimes the only way to do that is to reevaluate the market and reduce the asking price. If your home is not having many showings despite all the things that we have done to market it, it may be priced too high; people may feel that there are homes which offer more than yours, for equal or less money."

"So," you ask, "what do I do now? I really want to get my home sold – for as much as possible, in the least amount of time! I know you've heard this before . . ."

Your friendly realtor replies, "Let's do a market analysis on your home today and compare it to other homes in your market to see if pricing may be the problem. You know that I will do everything that I can to help make this sale, and to assist you with all your future real-estate needs. After all, you know that I am here to help you make good decisions!"

Six Secrets to Successful Investing

By Grover Kahl, financial planner

Successful investing is one of the key things that we must do to live a fulfilled life. Successful investing will help us accumulate enough money to retire comfortably and provide us with that feeling of satisfaction that comes from knowing our financial future is secure. How do we invest successfully? There are six key points that we must fully understand and adopt as our own investment philosophy.

Consider Inflation and Taxes

Inflation has been called the silent thief because it slowly but surely steals wealth from all of us. If we look at inflation over the last 20 years, we will find that inflation has averaged over 6.3%. This has a devastating impact. A 1970 dollar is now worth only 25 cents. When we add the impact of taxes to this picture, it looks much worse. For example, if you're in a 28% tax bracket and inflation is averaging just four percent, you need to earn a 5.6% return on your investments just to break even after taxes and inflation. We must fully understand that our real risk is our risk of losing purchasing power after taxes and inflation.

Invest Long Term

Often the short-term volatility of the day leads investors astray. In effect, they can't see the forest for the trees. While the markets have been extremely volatile in the short run, they have, over the long run, produced tremendous results.

Use Professional Management

In 1985, Harvard conducted a study which found that 86% of the people who had invested in individual stocks lost money. Remember that the market, over the long run, has average return of 10% to 12%. More importantly, the study indicated that 85% of the people who invested in mutual funds made money. The difference was that individual investors were often emotionally whipsawed into buying at the top and selling near the bottom. By using a professional manager, investors were able to eliminate the emotional stress of individual security selection in long-term investment planning.

Diversification Reduces Risk

If an investor was to buy an individual stock, the risk that he/she would take is more than six times the market risk. With four stocks, there would still be a risk over two and a half times the stock market. In fact, it takes 100 individual stocks to have a diversified portfolio. To achieve this, it would require about $500,000 in investments. This is impractical for most people. Fortunately, through the use of professional management investments such as mutual funds and variable annuities, it is possible to buy into a diversified pool of assets for small amounts of money and receive professional management and diversification.

Use an Asset Allocation Strategy

Asset allocation goes beyond diversification within one category (i.e., stocks) to diversification between different types of investments (stocks, corporate bonds, government bonds, municipal bonds, cash, international stocks, and international bonds). Studies have proven that, by allocating money into different investment types, risk can be substantially reduced, return can be increased, or both. Asset allocation works on the premise that not all assets or investment types go up and down in tandem. Further, by finding asset categories with complementary movements (ones that offset short-term downward movements of others), risk can be substantially reduced.

Use Tax-exempt Securities

There are a variety of tax-exempt securities or tax-advantaged investments that are available for you to consider in your long-term investment planning. The first and most popular is municipal bonds. Municipal bonds offer the investor the ability to receive income which is not subject to Federal taxes and, in some cases, State and Local taxes. Another tax-advantaged investment are annuities. Annuities offer the investor the ability to defer taxes on returns as long as they are reinvested in the annuity. Annuities have changed dramatically over the last five to 10 years. One of the most exciting changes has been the fact that annuity companies have teamed up with mutual-fund managers to provide the investor with the excellent money-management track record of professionally managed mutual funds while the insurance company provides the investor with the tax deferral of the annuity contract. Annuities, in today's world, offer you a variety of different accounts which mirror mutual funds - so they are well worth considering for anyone who is investing long term for retirement or who is in retirement and looking for income plus growth to offset future inflation.

Mutual funds, annuities, and all services mentioned above have costs and fees associated with them. If you would like to receive more information and full disclosure, call me at 313-941-7310. I will be delighted to work with you, providing you with all the necessary information to make an informed decision. As always, investors should carefully review the prospectus and disclosure documents before making any investments. □
